A book of raver merit is John Muir's 'Mountains of California,' which belongs to the same class as Thoreau's Walden, and records the intimate communion of sympathetic soul with nature. The hills, the big trees, the animals are all human to the author. He feels their moods and lives plone with them as with friends. Some day, perhaps, the book will be raised from the dead, or, rather, brought to life, for it never had any popularity to speak of stands on my shelf alongside of Richard Jefferies, Walten, and Thoreau, though it is properly a book of travel and adventure. The craft of climbing has given rise to a mass of books and produced an organized hody of experts to read them. A few have desorved and obtained wider popularity. It is extraor dinary how faint is the picture most of them give of the scenery traversed by the line of roote. Till recently African landscape remained vague in the minds of home-staying readers. The reason was the overwhelming interest of African sport. Many so-called books of African travel are really books of sport. A few tell prolonged stories of thrilling adventure. THE STORY OF KHAKI.

Books of travel are primarily concerned . The story of khaki is one of the industrial them, according to the temper of the trivel use of an olive dye in connection with the ler, with mon, heasts, and landscape. The clothing of our troops in India dates back older travellers troubled little about land. for many years, The tint was devised, in scape. Old writers used for the purpose pigments which they leaving the plain path of action full in a were unable to fix, and also unable to prestride or two among 'horrid rocks,' 'huge pare, in a uniform state. The conversation drifted to cotton drill, and the regimental officer made the remark that the first Manchester man who succeeded in producing an absolutely tast khaki dye would make his fortune. Many experiments were made and at longth an effective dye was obtained. but, unhappily, it yielded at once to the scorp and soda tost. Instead of giving up in despair, the two inventors pursued their researches, and one day the dyer produced piece of fabric which upon being tested was found to retain its colour even under the severe application of a caustic alkalibook of travel must deal with men if it is Ho was requested to try again, and again to attain enduring popularity. The Chemilpo correspondent of the Kobe Herald, writing on the 10th inst , says :-What exactly is in the air is difficult to W. Hazlitt, a work that deserves more tell, but political men seem to have their hands quite full and do not at all seem inclined to part with much information. It is quite clear Russia and Japan are the only contending parties and it is further as permanently popular. Scoresby's clear that each is auxious to avoid coming into contact with the other. Rumours fly. first that the Russians have obtained a concession in Masampo, then off Fusan, next a large island, and then a port near Chinnampo. There is no doubt some truth in these reports, and little doubt is felt in well-informed circles that Russia means husiness and at any cost will have not one concession, but several. She is gaining ground fast with the Koreans. She is using every means possible to carry outher designs upon this country. No other power cares two buttons for the poor little Kingdom of Korea. I heard it said by a man in a high resition, one who knows a good deal that is going on in inner circles, that Russia not only intends to have Karoa but her designs go as far as Japan itself. This may seem rather a big order, and I for one think it is but many true friends of Japan cannot but feel this is the hope of Russia, in spite of whatever she may say. A very noteworthy incident happened here the other day in connection with the visit of the Russian fleet of five warships. This was the coming down from Seoul of the popular Prince generally known as the 'Fat Prince.' He is a favourite with most people and represents the views and leanings of a great many of those in power. He was entertained on board and visited the fleet, receiving a royal salute from the ships-quite an event,-if not the first of its kind in modern history. It is not difficult to guess how delighted and flattered the amiable prince felt. For such a powerful man in the Russia-Japanese political duel he was well used and highly rewarded for his gracious act in visiting the fleet. The Russians tried bard to buy coal, but everybody denied them. Even attempts to get rice met with much the same reply. All the coal is in the bands of the Japanese. The Russians have a considerable number of soldiers in the country and thousands are stationed just across the border. The Koreans up north are said to be most friendly to the Russians, while south around Seoul she is gaining ground fast. It is thought here among thinking men that Japan must make up her mind to Russian influence being predominant in Korea before long, unless she (Japan) strikes a blow to prevent it. Even then we cannot ignore the fact of the enermous power and wealth of the Northern Bear, Japan has friends and they are not anxious to see her crushed. It is felt Japan has her hands full and a difficult task to solve the Korean question? There is much to be said on both sides. Japan acts in Koren as if there were to possible idea but 'Korea for Japan.' Japan excludes wherever she can talk others from securing trade concessions. Take Fusan for instance Russia or any other power cannot bay an inch of land and you cannot get a shop at any price under any pretence whatever to sell or trade as a merchant. That being so, the Japanese, not content, try the same at the next port, Masampe, and think the Russians their enemies for trying to purchase land. Sarely not only Russia but every other country has as much right to buy land as Japan. Although a blind man can see well enough the object of Russia is not alone that of trade, the policy of exclusiveness carried on by Japan has not tondo and does not tend to create the best of feeling between nations in general Practing.

WHY WE SIT ON TABLES. About ten million women are exasperated every day by men sitting on tables. So far as I am avare, women de not pay for the how it is used. The labit of men sitting on tables has led to the invention of doubt ultimately result in other clever notions. At one time it was supposed that men chese to sit on tables because they could get exercise without exertion by swinging their own legs and by kicking the legs of the tuble. The scientific fact is that tables are more magnetic than chairs. If three men walk into a room where there is no woman, two of them will make for the table naturally. The third one will try two or three chairs, and finally give up in despair and join the others. The source of this magnetism is the friction that women create by polishing tables so frequently. Of course, won-n may that they only polish tables because men sit on them and spoil them, but this is illogical and feminine. No really clever men ait on chairs. They use their chairs for keeping their papers and things on, also their feet Chairs are notoriously immoral. You will notice that a well-bred man when he finds ! himself losing his temper invariably gots up from his chair and makes a direct line for the nearest table. This enables him to keep his temper and to argue reasonably. The importance of tables for this purpose has long been recognised by furniture-makers. You will notice that the tables in a billiard-room, which is essential.

Our contemporary states that last year, ly a man's room, are always supplied with when the cost of shipbuilding was uneight legs, which are skubby and substan- duly high, owing to labour and matertial. A man's writing table is also given broad legs. On the other hand, a woman's davenpore or the knicknack tables in her boudoir have thin and spidery legs that are no use for sitting on. From this it might be argued that women never sit on tables. The man who takes the trouble to investigate, however will find out that they do so in secret Every morning after breakfast the lady of the house retreats into the back quarters on what she calls household duties. Her real object is to go down to the servants' room and sit on the kitchen table under the pretence of ordering dinner. quite time that the uselessness and impropriety of chairs should be recognised. If people only sat on tables and on window ledges and on the edge of beds, the world would be a great deal happier. So I say

So that, altogether, in face the United States are set upon the indus of foreign competition our fleet continues tral and commercial conquest of Siberia. The Siberian merchants and traders Attack on a Missionary. have become alive to the situation, and speak of petitioning for a prohibition to be placed upon American imports. On the other hand, the new customers of the American firms protest against such action, and say, rightly, from their point of view, that they themselves are not to be blamed if the inaction in Siberian trade continues, with an absodesrness of all things. While the dis. people from the countryside got upon mob abolition of the free port continues, clothes tora off his back and had to flee to the Americans will secure the Siberian the district magistrate of Huangkanghsian market; they will erect mills and ironworks for safety. THE BALANCE SHEET OF BRITISH SHIPPING.

Engineering, dealing with the subject of international competition in shipping, gives some interesting figures as to the growth ial, Britain added 1,186,000 tons of new shipping to her fleet, the measurement! of 856 vessels, of which 628, of 1,166,706 tons, were steamers the largest in crease in any year four history. We bought from foreigners 45 steamers of 58,094 tons, and 29 small sailing ships, while transfers from the colonies and other additions brought the gross increase to our fleet to 1.242,592 tons of steamers, and only 33,108 tons of sailing vessels. But losses by misadventure, age, and decay, as well as sales to foreigners, resulted in large deductions. These total 722,199 tons of steamers, and 173,645 tons of sailing ships, 27 per cent of the fermer and 37 per cent, of the latter being due to losses, breaking up, &c. There is thus a net increase, after allowing for deductions of 194 steamers of 520,402 tons; but a net decrease in sailing ships of 389, and 14,537 tons. Our sales to foreigners were heavy; but it is important to note the remark made by Lloyd's Registry that 'in the main the vessels which are transferred to foreigners are not of very recent construction. Thus, when it is noted that last year our sales to foreigners exceeded our purchases from them by 203 steamers, of 447.617 tons, it follows that these do not rank in value, or in carrying capacity, with 'It is reported that during the present an equal tonnage of new ressels. The United States was closest to China of all the great commercial nations except Japan, and they had done more to open it to civilization than any country except England. America's trade with China was next to England's and she was second to England in the number of her population in China. The Eldorado of commerce lay before them in the Far East, where hundreds of millions of people were awakening to a sense of new wants. Referring to the great advance in American trade he said that they sold to China twice as many pieces of goods in the past year as they had sold in the year before, and the statistes of the current year would show still greater sales. He advised that young Americans should be sent to China and made to study the language, and that a civil service system, so far as Consuls are concerned, should also be adopted for the Far East. The Chinese Minister Wu Ting in a characteristic speech tendered some wholesome advice to the commercial men of America. He warned them not to dump their surplus goods in China irrespective of quality and without regard to the needs of the people. If they did so they would rue the venture. They must study the needs of the Chinese and supply them accordingly. It seems strange to read of a Chinese Minister dictating to Americans the terms of com-

commerce with China.
